Devin has substantial experience litigating commercial, trade secret, securities, and employment cases in federal and state court and before various arbitration tribunals (JAMS, AAA and FINRA). He has successfully defended numerous customer and employment claims against brokerage firms and other financial institutions. Devin's practice also includes advising broker-dealers and financial advisers in regulatory matters before FINRA and the SEC and assisting his corporate clients with complicated internal investigations.

Devin represents firms and individuals in commercial and trade secret litigation matters in both court and arbitration. He has successfully litigated high-profile trade secret matters in California and other jurisdictions. Devin has handled securities litigation and regulatory enforcement matters involving several different types of complicated investment products, strategies, and sales practices resulting in claims of statutory and common law securities fraud and unsuitability. His employment litigation experience includes defending companies in California and around the country against numerous types of employment claims both statutory (federal and state) and common law. He has successfully handled the complicated and thorny employment issues that California employers face. His business and commercial litigation experience includes defending international companies including one of the largest banks in the world in an arbitration involving an eight-figure investment filed by a well-known bank in South America.

Devin earned his bachelor's degree from the University of California, Santa Barbara and his law degree from the University of the Pacific, McGeorge School of Law. Prior to law school, he served as a legislative aide in the California State Senate. While in law school, Devin served as Student Bar Association president, an editor of McGeorge's Transnational Lawyer and president of the McGeorge International Law Society. Devin is also a graduate of the Los Angeles Area Chamber of Commerce's Leadership LA Program.
