Anusha is an experienced litigator who focuses her practice on defending clients against state and federal consumer protection claims, class actions, premises liability, wrongful death, insurance and maritime litigation. Anusha vigorously handles all phases of litigation, from drafting and arguing successful dispositive motions, to leading mediation and settlement negotiations, and preparing cases for and through trial. She has represented financial institutions, insurers, airlines, and clients in the transportation, hospitality and travel industries.

Anusha earned her law degree from the University of Illinois College of Law, where she was chief justice on the Moot Court Board of Editors and co-editor and research assistant to Jeffery A. Handelman, Guide to Trademark Trial & Appeal Board Practice. She earned her Bachelor of Science in finance from the University of Illinois College of Business. During the summer of 2007, Anusha participated in the International Intellectual Property Law Programme at Oxford University, St. Peter's College. Anusha worked as a property casualty underwriter prior to attending law school.
