

Celgene Corporation

PROTECTING YOUR PORTFOLIO

Celgene is one of the world's largest biotech companies, with annual sales of more than $5 billion. Its mission is to discover and develop treatments for cancer and other severe inflammatory conditions. To that end, Celgene's most valuable asset is its intellectual property portfolio. Cozen O'Connor protects that portfolio by handling all of Celgene's non-patent intellectual property work, including transactions, prosecutions, enforcement, and litigation. In June 2010, the firm supported Celgene in its $2.9-billion purchase of Abraxis BioScience, the developer of a new chemotherapy technology. Beyond any one deal, Celgene relies on Cozen O'Connor's depth of knowledge about its trademark portfolio and its business to make smart decisions that will benefit the company in the long term. Celgene trusts Cozen O'Connor attorneys to find creative alternatives to court—and to act confidently when litigation is the best option.

“We are particularly concerned with unlawful trademark use, and we police this with Cozen's help. They provide a watch service, which is very helpful. Working with Cozen allows us to be proactive instead of just respond.”

Rebecca Goodman, Patent Counsel Celgene Corporation
