NYU will be holding their Third Annual Real Estate Symposium on April 23, 2014. Real Estate taxation drives both the structure of real estate financing transactions and the capital flows that support them. Three experts will draw on their knowledge of real estate tax policy and implementation to help us understand some of the headline issues for 2014 including carried interests. The panel will close with a review of the state of FIRPTA and its impact on foreign capital flows into the US property markets. Thomas Gallagher, of the Real Estate Group, will be moderating a panel at the symposium.
