William Walsh of the Commercial Litigation Department and David Heffernan of the Transportation & Logistics Practice Group present this one hour webinar discussing the hot topic of drones and the pending litigation.

What You Will Learn:

We are starting to see significant increases in the number of close calls between traditional aircraft and UAVs. Such close encounters suggest that a collision incident is becoming more foreseeable, if not inevitable. What would the legal aftermath of a significant incident look like? Who gets sued, why and under what theory? We will look ahead and explore various aspects of aviation litigation following a major incident as well as provide an update on the ever-evolving regulatory landscape.
