

New ACA Developments Affecting Individual Coverage & Cancellations

Friday, November 15, 2013

On November 14, President Obama announced that health insurers will be able to extend existing plans for individuals through 2014 that would have been otherwise cancelled due to changes under the Affordable Care Act. This proposed fix does not guarantee that extensions will be available, but rather allows insurers to offer the extension and for state regulators to approve it.

Our Public Strategies team is closely following developments and is on the ground with staff and Members as policymakers work through the most significant change to the ACA yet.

Please reach out to any of the Public Strategies professionals if you have questions on how this policy may affect your organization.
