Thursday, May 15, 2014

Steve Silton, of the Corporate Practice Group, was recently quoted on MinnPost.com in an article titled, "Kline on College Sports: Unions Not the Answer." The article examines unions among student-athletes and the NCAA as college administrators and legal experts prepare to convene on Capitol Hill to warn Rep. Kline and his Education and the Workforce committee against the ill effects of unionized college athletes. Steve offered his remarks on unionization by stating, "If [NCAA president] Mark Emmert is brought in front of Congress, just to testify, that in and of itself would probably do enough to push the needle toward something."
