Tuesday, March 13, 2018

Jennifer Brandt, co-chair of the firm's Family Law Practice, joined Good Day Philadelphia to help viewers understand the larger picture of recent fertility clinic failures. Fertility clinics in Ohio and California suffered severe malfunctions that compromised collectively over 1,000 patients' frozen embryos. Couples who lost embryos are heading to court to hold the facility accountable for dashing their dreams of future children. Jennifer explained that many clinics have waiver language that explains the risks and states the clinic is not responsible for lost embryos.
