

Breaking the Ice: Engineer-Turned-Attorney Specializes in Patent Work

Friday, December 28, 2018

Vadim Braginsky, counsel of Cozen O'Connor's Intellectual Property department, spoke with Minnesota Lawyer about his journey from electrical engineer to an attorney focusing on intellectual property and patents. Braginsky said joining a general practice firm such as Cozen O'Connor enables him to offer "holistic advice that's more closely tied to clients' business interests."

To read more, click here.

Related Practice Areas

- Intellectual Property