

DC Big Law Leaders Judge Zuckerberg

Friday, April 13, 2018

Barry Boss, co-chair of Cozen O'Connor's White Collar Defense & Investigations Practice, spoke with The National Law Journal about latest on Mark Zuckerberg testifying before Senate. Zuckerberg did what he set out to do, indicated Barry. "It was the Holy Trinity: He accepted responsibility for his mistakes, said he was sorry and promised to do better," said Boss. "These are the fundamental requirements for anyone seeking forgiveness and a second chance." Whether the government regulates Facebook and ramps up scrutiny of Zuckerberg remains to be seen, but such decisions could turn on the outcome of the midterm elections this fall.
